SANDY'S SNIPPETS

The Special Users Permit (SUP) has been signed off by the city and will be good through 2025.

If there is a time when public players fill open spots and this impedes the pace of play for your group, please contact the city staff as soon as possible. Tell the pro shop after the round if the problem continued. In the next month or so we will be tracking pace of play using Golf Genius. I will let you know when we start the implementation. Stay tuned!

New sweep balance tracking will start in April. Sweeps accounting will be verifying the member winnings' after each event, with the pro shop. It is up to you to get your balances from the pro shop and/or to maintain the balance yourself.

Remember, if you know of volunteer activities (that grow the game of golf), please forward that information to Michelle so she post it in the next newsletter.

MEMBER SPOTLIGHT

Eunhwa Lenehan. At age 14, Yuna moved from Korea to USA, by herself, to live with her aunt and family, her aunt convincing her the US had medicine i.e. vitamins, that would make her taller! Eunhwa is still 5'2.5". VERY slow release vitamins it would seem!

Eunhwa retired as an electrical engineer/program manager where she designed chips – think cellphones not carbs!

Fav domestic golf trip: Pinehurst where Eunhwa and her husband won low gross in a couples tournament.

Fav overseas golf trip: Scotland. The golf NOT weather!

Wishlist domestic golf trip: Augusta. After discovering the cure for the common cold she will be invited to join! Or perhaps she will buy the course!

Wishlist overseas golf trip: New Zealand. Not Australia???

Hole-in-ones: Four – three at Morgan Run and one at Colina Park.

If you could change one rule: Be able to take relief from divots.

Fabulous foursome: Eunhwa, Corey Pavin, Paul Azinger, Jordan Spieth.

Rules Corner

How to take relief from a cart path: A cart path is an immovable obstruction. You can hit the ball where it lies on the cart path or you can take free relief.

It is important to determine which side of the cart path is the nearest point of complete relief.

To determine the nearest point of relief, find the nearest point where you can take a stance with the club you intend to use, making sure your stance is completely off the path.

When you take your stance, the point of relief is where the club head is. Place a tee there. Then, take your longest club and measure away from the position you first marked with a tee, no closer to the hole and place a 2nd tee there. The relief area is pie-shaped, created by the 2 tees. Note, you don't have to place tees and measure with your driver – this is recommended to ensure you drop correctly.

If the ball lies exactly in the middle of the cart path, then for a right-handed player, the nearest point of relief would be the left side of the cart path.

Your nearest point of relief cannot be in a Penalty Area. It must be in the same area of the golf course where you are taking relief (general area or bunker).
